WHAT IT DOES

Everything the family needs, in one place

Calendar

Events, recurrences and reminders. Phone calendars and school or team feeds can be added, so everything lives in one view.

To-dos and reminders

Assignable tasks with reminders. Urgent ones ring like an alarm. Ask anyone in the family to take a task.

Requests, even for non-users

Ask a family member who is not on KidBox through a link: the first "I'll do it" becomes a real to-do assigned to that person.

Shopping list

Shared in real time, with who added what and when. Can also be dictated to Alexa (Italian only).

Family expenses

Costs by category. Anything with a price, like a medical visit or a car repair, creates its own expense.

Documents and notes

One place for reports, tickets and notes. Attachments from any card end up in the same document library.

Wallet

Tickets, ID documents, loyalty cards and payment cards. Payment cards are entered by hand and never read by the AI.

Family AI assistant

On Pro and Max: answers about the family's own information, reads documents, builds meal, fitness and trip plans.

Privacy. Documents, notes, passwords, wallet, chat, photos and videos are encrypted with a family key. The backend sees encrypted data, not the content, and can't read those fields. Notifications therefore don't show previews of encrypted content.

Does everyone need the app?

No. People without the app can be asked for help through a link, and KidBox also works in the browser.

Is it only for separated parents?

No. It is built for any family that coordinates more than one adult, and works well for parents who live apart.

Where does my data live?

On Google Firebase. Sensitive content is encrypted with a key held by the family, so the backend sees encrypted data.

Is it free?

The core app is free, with no limit on members. Paid plans add the AI assistant and higher limits.
